GLAD TO GET BACK

Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals, governor of the Canal zone, arrived in New York recently on board the S. S. Pastore. He said he would offer his resignation to take effect in November. Colonel Goethals is accompanied by his wife and son Thomas, and is here on a leave of absence to visit the Panama-Pacific exposition. The colonel expects to be put on the active army list, and if this is not possible, he will ask for his retirement with the rank of brigadier-general. He told newspaper men that he intended to visit the exposition as a private individual, and desired that no fuss be made about him by any of the officials. That Mrs. Goethals is anxious to leave the Canal zone permanently was shown by a remark she made shortly after the ship left quarantine and started for the pier: "I hope never to go back," she said.

Cape Girardeau now has a factory for making small flouring mills. The "midget mills," as they are called, can be operated by one man and have a capacity of a barrel of flour per hour.

A Wonderful Antiseptic
Germs and infection aggravate ailments and retard healing. Stop that infection at once. Kill the germs and get rid of the poisons. For this purpose a single application of Sloan's Liniment not only kills the pain but destroys the germs. This neutralizes infection and gives nature assistance by overcoming congestion and gives a chance for the free and normal flow of the blood. Sloan's Liniment is an emergency doctor and should be kept constantly on hand. 25c., 50c. The $1.00 size contains six times as much as the 25c.

A sweet-smelling glue, always ready for immediate use, may be made as follows: Take one pound of common glue, put in a vessel with one and one-half pints of salt water and allow to soften. NEW ARMY IS FIT

French People Are Well Pleased With "Keecheenaes"

Bring a New Element Into Life at the Front in France—They Sing and Whistle as They March, Say the Peasants.

By FREDERICK PALMER.
(International News Service.)

British Headquarters, France.—The "Keecheenaes," as the French peasants call the new army, have joined "Tommees Akeens," the regular, and the "Teretoreals" at the front. Tommees begin to feel like the oldest inhabitant. By the way, he does not like to be called "Tommy," though the world persists in a word which is as objectionable to him as "Jacky" is to the American bluejacket.

The British regular did all the fighting for the first five months of the war. He had his jokes at the expense of the Territorials, who are about the same as our National Guard, when they arrived. The Territorials thought that they were made soldiers when the war broke out; but they were drilled some more and set to digging reserve trenches behind the line. In the spring they had their turn, and the Canadians, too.

"Don't be downhearted! There are still some Boches left!" the Territorials join the regulars in saying to the new army. Besides the new army the Territorials feel like G. A. R. men.

"It's kind of you! We knew that you could have killed them all off, if you had wanted to," the Kitcheners reply.

"Don't charge too fast! Wait for us to catch up!" call the regulars. "We'll wait on the Rhine!" answer the new army.

Well named is the new army. It has brought a new element into life at the front. When I heard the tramp of a company past my window the other morning I guessed they were new army men by the peculiar vigor and precision of their tread on the pavement. They bore the stamp of long route marches over English roads and of the merciless formal training of the drill ground.

If the average old-timer of the trenches had to run five miles against the average new army man he would be blown half away and the new army man would trot past the goal an easy winner.

The British regular rarely sings in camp or on the march. Neither elated or depressed he plods along doing his day's work. As the new army flows in he will be outnumbered but unchanged.

These new army men were singing "God Save the King" before they lay down in the straw for the night in the land of France which was all so new and strange to them and so commonplace to the veterans. Their fresh young voices were pleasant to the ear. "It is good. The Keecheenaes sing and whistle as they march," say the French peasants.

Everyone hopes they will keep on singing.

If there is any ornament which is obsolete at the front it is the sword.

The sword is the officer's symbol of authority; the sign that he is on duty. In place of it the officer at the front wears his sword belt. His sword along with countless other swords has been checked outside the cloakroom of war along with his umbrella which no one thinks of carrying at the front. You cannot tell him from the other officers except by his eagerness and his battalion insignia.

For ten months the new army had waited for its Mecca. Its soldiers have read all about the effects of modern shell fire. They know what they are in for. Learners, they came among experts expecting to be nagged a great deal as novices by the old hands, and except for the veteran regular's little jokes at their expense they have found everything very kind.

"We need you—and there can't be too many of you," say the old-timers. "It's you who must finish the job which we have begun."

There are men in this new army who have incomes of ten thousand a year digging trenches beside a man who had not a shilling when he enlisted, university graduates taking their baptism of shell fire as privates who "pal up" with men who can hardly read and write.

"We like the Keecheenaes," said a Frenchman. "They are all classes shoulder to shoulder the same as in our army. Rich or poor, a man is nothing except the life he can give for his country."

Water Spaniel Supplies the Needs of Owner and Neighbors in Indiana.

Aurora, Ind.—James C. Duggens, a farmer, who lives on the Laughery Creek, has a water spaniel that is noted along the stream for its method of catching fish. The dog has caught several hundred pounds during the last few months for its owner and his neighbors.

The dog dives into the water and soon appears with a fish in its mouth, and will repeat its diving for several hours at a time.

RICH IN RESOURCES

Russia Faces Indefinite Future of Warfare Undismayed.

"The Most Powerful Country of the Future" Was Just Finding Itself When War Broke Out—Wealth Untouched.

Washington, D. C.—With the greatest wholesale destruction of treasure in all history taking place, with war-wrought economic losses piling up in such stupendous aggregates as no panic ever caused, the question as to how long each of the belligerents can stand the fearful strain upon its resources is becoming as important and fully as interesting as are any of those more stirring questions growing out of the purely military phase of the world-war. In a bulletin just issued, the National Geographic society sketches the pre-war economic condition of Russia, which, having expended $3,500,000,000, having lost hundreds of millions of dollars in foreign trade, and cities and provinces worth hundreds of millions more, is facing an indefinite future of warfare undismayed, confident. The bulletin reads:

"Commercial and industrial revolution were stirring in Russia before the war, the work of opening its magnificent domain was being rapidly carried forward; plans for developing its almost unlimited resources were in process of confident organization; modern cities were springing up like mushrooms in rich Siberia; textile, metal and other industries were laying firm foundations, and foreign trade had been brought up to about $1,500,000,000. What has been called the most powerful country in the future was finding itself, and was preparing to enter upon the centuries of expansion that it will need to exhaust the possibilities of its boundless natural wealth.

"About two and one-half times larger than the United States, with an area of 8,650,000 square miles and a population of 178,000,000, which is increasing at the rate of 3,000,000 a year. Russia's natural resources resemble those of this country, and are proportionate. It has nearly 900,000,000 acres of forest—compared with the 644,000,000 acres of the United States—much of which, even now, is carefully administered, and which, one day, will be the world's first source of timber. It has 250,000,000 acres of land under cultivation, while this country has a cultivated area of about twice as great; but Russia can expand her farm lands twenty-fold and still leave virgin land to the future. It can become the granary and the stock barn of the world.

"Scarcely two score years have passed since Russia began with serious purpose the task of her internal development. Progress, during the first thirty years of this period was hesitant. In the last decade, however, it has doubled its foreign trade, of which 50 per cent is exports; still this foreign commerce is less than half that of the United States. But Russia before the war had scarcely begun to gather steam for the prosecution of her tasks. There remain hundreds of millions of acres of farmlands to be brought under the plow; tens of thousands of factory plants to build; rich mines to be opened; great railway and canal systems to be built; millions of home-builders to be moved into Siberia, the silver East of the czar's empire, and many millions of illiterates to be educated to a higher standard of life and efficiency.

"Russia is a vast storehouse of raw materials, and must for many years remain a purchaser of machinery and manufactured goods in increasing quantities. Yet the mills of Russia consume $130,000,000 worth of raw cotton annually, and Russian iron and steel rails have already found their way into competition in the markets of the world. Germany bought more from Russia than any other three countries, and sold to the Russians about half of all their imports. These two empires did a tremendous, thriving business with one another before the war, and a great stream of German capital flowed into the northern empire for investment. England, Holland, Austria-Hungary and Italy, in the order named, followed Germany in business with the Russians. German trade promotion was thoroughly organized throughout the land, and in Riga, Petrograd and Moscow names of thousands of German firms could be seen.

"Russia, as are but few other great nations, is self-sustaining in the matter of raw materials; but the Muscovite empire is dependent upon the factories of other lands for every step that it may take in the upward scale; it is even dependent upon foreign manufacturers to maintain standards in its wide-sweeping territory as high as they are today. There is fabulous riches awaiting transmutation by Russian industry, but Russian industry has hardly passed the birth."

"Frieded" Muncie Cop.

Muncie, Ind.—The nervous pick-pocket is the one who recently, in broad daylight, "frieded" the pockets of the superintendent of police, William A. McIlvaine, of his annual pass to the county fair. The "touch" was made while the chief was in central police headquarters, and became known when Dr. Fred L. Bunch asked Chief McIlvaine for the use of the pass during the afternoon.

Kansas Man Rides on the Road to Reach Farm Job Promised Him.

Wichita, Kan.—Peter Coughlin is hard at work in the harvest fields, despite his ninety-one years, and likes it. He so wrote to W. M. Woods, superintendent of the Sedgewick County Home here, after reaching Great Bend where a job had been promised him.

Tramp Told Heavily.

Volga, S. D.—William Corcoran, a local market gardener, hired a tramp to cut the weeds and grass around his plot of ground yesterday while Corcoran gave his attention to duties elsewhere. When he returned he found that the tramp, in an excess of zeal, had cut down not only the grass and weeds, but also the potato plants, thus destroying the crop.

THE MISSOURI STATE FAIR GROUNDS DURING FAIR WEEK ALWAYS PRESENT A SCENE OF ACTIVITY AND ANIMATION.

The purring of ever-moving automobiles, the shuffle of thousands of feet over the walks and streets of the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia make the grounds take on the aspects of a great city in the country, for the fair grounds, with their magnificent permanent structures, are really a city in the country, as it were.

Looking down the government highway, as in the accompanying illustration, one sees the Woman's building and the livestock pavilion, two of the centers of activity, all during the fair, for the women of Missouri make their central meeting place and stockmen and farmers and society folks gather for four nights in the livestock pavilion for the greatest horse show given anywhere in the central west.

During the days from September 25 to October 2, 1915, the livestock pavilion will be the scene of the exhibition and judging of the best livestock Missouri has ever sent to her State Fair.
